SWEET SEAT

When the potential of another stamp in my passport is still months up the road, the quickest, most inspiring place I can visit is sitting on a bench in Central Park. By pushing myself away from my desk, away from my computer, away from my (ever, ever present!) iPhone I am completely unplugged, which allows my mind to drift and take in the sights and sounds surrounding me. I can hear the internal chatter dissipate, feel my pulse slow to a steady rhythmic pace and then....magic! Pure magic. My bench never disappoints. I just need to show up. Go ahead, take a seat and see what happens!
